C. Purchasing Process

The seller's notes were useful when I was deciding whether to place the order. The listing stated that the product was 100% original, that it would be packed with cardboard and bubble wrap, and that orders placed before 3:00 p.m. Western Indonesia Time (WIB) would be shipped the same day. After reading this information, I added the book to my cart, entered my boarding-house address, selected a shipping service, and paid for the order.

The package arrived at my boarding house three days later. It was neatly and securely packed, as the seller had described. When I opened it, I felt relieved and happy to finally have a book I had wanted for a long time. I then started reading it.

D. Evaluation of the Product Description

Overall, the product description was helpful because it provided information about the book, the seller's packaging process, and the shipping policy. Professional writing should be clear, concise, and easy to understand.

E. Conclusion

This experience showed me that a clear and detailed product description can help build a buyer's trust. The information in the listing was consistent with the book I received, and the overall process was simple and convenient. For these reasons, online shopping was a positive experience for me.
